Spotlight on Our Business Partners

Creating a Legacy of Excellence

Plus Inc. is proud to partner with Legacy Early College of Greenville. We commend this outstanding organization for its enormous contribution to our community.

Legacy Early College is a public charter school for elementary through high school, and is located in Greenville's West End. Legacy's education model combines academic excellence, nutrition, and fitness. Legacy is a school of mastery, serves only nutritious meals and is the only public school in SC that provides daily PE for every scholar. Scholars are also taught core social, relationship, and emotional skills.

In a school climate where caring, support, and high expectations are the norm, scholars are able to focus on academic and physical fitness every day in preparation for a bright future.

Legacy Early College is a school that reflects both the West End renewal and the Sterling community tradition of pride and excellence. At Legacy, a progressive curriculum is delivered via a nationally recognized system for teaching and learning.

Community and family are essential parts of the learning environment, and interaction with others is based on a code of traditional values and respect. At Legacy, instruction is delivered through technology-based educational tools like Promethean Boards, Aquos Boards, iPads, and hand-held devices for mathematics like the TI-nspire navigation system. Creativity and expression are encouraged not only in music and art classes, but also in traditional academics.

In History

In October 1938, more than twenty years before the first copy machine went to market, inventor Chester Carlson created the first photocopy by using static electricity from a handkerchief, light, and dry powder. This led the way for the invention of the modern-day copy machine. By 1959, the copier had become an indispensable part of the workplace with the help of Xerox Corporation.
